Professionals Taking Responsibility to Make All Homes Accessible, Comfortable and Safe for Everyone!

Class included top experts from the interior design, renovation, home building, kitchen/bath design, caregiving and medical industries.
Making all homes more accessible and safer than current industry practices

LAWRENCEVILLE (August 2, 2019) – The Living In Place Institute™ is pleased to announce the successful completion of another Certified Living In Place Professional™ (CLIPP™) class. This class, approved for continuing education by National Kitchen & Bath Association, International Interior Design Association, , American Occupational Therapy Association, American Society of Home Inspectors, and others, creates interprofessional networks of experts working to make all homes safer.

BeckySue Becker is one of the recent graduates, BeckySue is honored to now be a part of the solution to improving independence and dignity for all homeowners through sharing their skills to identify safety concerns and recommend solutions in any home, regardless of the homeowners age or needs. “I am looking forward to helping my community become a safer place to live, one home at a time. My clients will benefit from my new Certified Living In Place Professional™ designation and my passion for helping each client.”

“It was an honor and pleasure to welcome Becker as one of the nationally respected professionals who participated in the recent CLIPP™ class,” says Erik Listou and Louie Delaware, Co-Founders of the Living In Place Institute. “Like many other housing professionals across the nation, Becker shares a concern for home accessibility and safety. Most homes were built with no attention to accessibility and safety risks that increase home accidents. Becker is now one of the experts leading our communities, and the nation, taking responsibility to guide all homeowners to ensure the safest and most accessible homes.

Becker is the Owner and Principal Designer of Designs by BSB, which serves the Greater Atlanta area. She is an award-winning Certified Master Kitchen & Bath Designer with 30 years of experience.
